NICOTINE PROSPERITY

As Struck Hopkinsville At The Rate Of $100,000 A Day.

BRING OF 500 WAGONS.

All Records Broken By Rush Of Weed To This Market.

There have been busy times in the Hopkinsville tobacco market, but this week is one of the banner weeks in handling the weed. Monday, Tuesday and yesterday long lines of wagons were strung out at the receiving doors of the American Snuff Co., The Imperial Tobacco Co., the W. S. Mathews Co., and Tandy & Fairleigh, and also at all three of the loose floor warehouses of Jas. West & Co., J. P. Thompson & Co., and R. E. Cooper & Co. the receipts were very heavy. The sales on the loose floors alone are averaging 100,000 lbs. a day. It is estimated—for accurate statistics are not available without much trouble—that 500 wagons were unloaded Tuesday. The factories began receiving at daylight and numbers of wagons had to stay in town over night. A great problem is to find accommodations for the wagons and for the drivers. Every boarding house is doing an overflow business.

The wagons come from all adjoining counties, many from great distances. They come into town with the tobacco covered with all kinds of clothes, from big water-proof tents to bed quilts of many hues.

Spot cash is paid for the tobacco and a million pounds of tobacco means about $85,000, as the tobacco averages $8.50. Much of this money at once finds its way into the channels of trade and the merchants who have had the foresight to advertise are doing a flourishing business.

In the big factories and rehandling houses, all of which have increased their capacity since the last season, there is the greatest activity. Hundreds of hands are being worked and in half a dozen of the biggest houses the weekly payrolls run from $2,000 to $1,000. This money is making the colored population so prosperous that applications for charity are becoming very few. Even those partially disabled can strip tobacco in houses where they can sit down.

The prices are not only holding up, but are getting stronger and the farmers are the happiest people seen in the city for a long time.

Strangers who are marketing their crops here for the first time are being well treated by the buyers and by the merchants with whom they trade and everybody is trying to make their experience in the city pleasant. They go away with praises of Hopkinsville and promises to return again.

Hopkinsville is to-day the most prosperous city in Western Kentucky. A golden stream is pouring from the horn of plenty and everybody is getting some of it. And these conditions will continue for at least three months.

NEGRO ASSAILANT NOT YET CAUGHT.

Man In Jail At Paducah Not The Right Man, Says Mrs. Holbrook.

Paducah, Ky., Jan. 31.—Mrs. Fannie Holbrook, of Graves county, who was criminally assaulted in her home Sunday night, came to Paducah this morning, and declared that Louis Boone, the negro brought here for safe keeping from the mob last night, is not the man.

The posse is pursuing another trail. It is believed the negro suspected of committing the assault came through Paducah yesterday morning, and went to Cairo and probable St. Louis.

Officers have gone in search of a negro answering his description.

GOV. HOOPER MAKES PLEDGE

Says Gov. Patterson Made No Effort to Enforce the Prohibition Laws.

WILL GO TO THE LIMIT,

New Executive of Tennessee, Will Try to Bring Violators to Terms.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 31.—In his first message to the Tennessee General Assembly, submitted today, Gov. Hooper censures the Patterson administration for the "non-enforcement of prohibition laws." Gov. Patterson, his immediate predecessor, was himself partially responsible for such an abuse, declared Gov. Hooper "by exercising too great an executive clemency."

Gov. Patterson's attitude, according to Gov. Hooper, "encouraged the wide spread violation of the law by dangling the hope—almost an assurance of a pardon before the eyes of a violator."

"He went on record," declared Gov. Hooper, "by saying that he was not going to extend clemency to any violator of this class unless there should be some extraordinary reason for so doing."

"It is my intention, officially and personally," continued Gov. Hooper, "to join hands with every citizen in fighting for the enforcement of this statute. If the Legislature will clothe me with additional power to enforce this law, I will use it. When citizens present the evidence of a violation of this statute before an official, and that official does not act, it is time to impeach."

Other recommendations include an increase in the appropriations for Confederate veterans, good roads, greater size and greater efficiency in the State guard, an anti pass law, larger appropriations for the public school system, and better pay for the teachers, compulsory attendance laws in connection with the schools, a juvenile reformatory, wide and general reforms in the penal system of the State and a fair parole law, greater economy in conducting some of the departments of the State, a fellow servants' law, a constitutional amendment providing for the initiative and referendum, legislation providing for the refunding of the State debt, and a thorough bank inspection system.

"The divorce evil," declared Gov. Hooper, "is one of the greatest evils in Tennessee on account of the lax administration of too liberal divorce laws." He recommends changes in the present laws designed to overcome such abuses.

Last Legal Hanging.

Pineville, Ky., Jan. 31.—James White, a negro rapist, was hanged in the jail yard here Monday morning for an assault upon eight-year-old Massie Woodard, an orphan, at Middlesboro, in July, 1909. An immense crowd witnessed the execution which will probably be the last legal hanging in the state.

ARM WAS BROKEN WHEN HE ESCAPED

Jim West Saved His Neck in Shelbyville Lynching, but Was Hurt in Fall.

Shelbyville, Ky., Jan. 31.—Private detectives who have been at work in Shelbyville for weeks, are said to have discovered a mass of evidence as to the operation of the mob, which lynched two negroes and from which Jim West had a marvelous escape.

It is also reported that West, whose present whereabouts are not known; has a broken arm, the injury having been suffered when he fell from the bridge after he had dangled for a time at the end of the rope by which the mob planned to hang him.

West, after making his escape, went to the home of his parents, where he spent two days and two nights. The story he told of his escape, which has already been recounted, is one of the most remarkable ever known.

The first negro, Eugene Marshall, was ordered to jump from the bridge. His neck was broken. The second, Wade Patterson, refused to jump and was pushed off, but the rope broke and he tried to get away. All the mob chased him except four or five, and it was while they were thus engaged that West, who had managed to grasp the rope with his hand when he was pushed off, worked the rope from around his neck, dropped to the creek bank and got away.

It is said that a great many indictments will follow the investigations by the detectives. The mob, it has been found, was composed chiefly of saloon hangers-on and the disorderly element.

George S. Wilson, formerly of Union county, but now a resident of Owensboro, and Speaker of the house of representatives, is practically certain to be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, says Argue in the Louisville Herald. As yet he has made no announcement of his candidacy but he is expected to do so with in the next week or two.

The Clarksville Leaf-Chronicle says: Complaint has been made to Judge Tyler that certain persons are using the court house without permit or authority for dances. Judge Tyler has accordingly notified the Sheriff to arrest all persons found in the court house without the proper permits. He has also had new locks placed on the doors and any one forcing or tampering with same will be prosecuted.

NEWEST OF ANIMALS.

Specimens Secured of the Wonderful Okapi.

Visitors to the Museum of Natural History in New York will soon have an opportunity of looking at specimens of the okapi, an animal so rare that hunters who have visited its native haunts in the Kongo region have not seen it. Even Henry M. Stanley, who first heard of the strange beast, was unable to get sight of one, though he spent years in the African jungle. The natives told him about the "red headed horse" that had a body like a giraffe and the legs of a zebra. When Stanley returned to civilization he published these stories and caused considerable excitement among scientists and naturalists. Sir Henry Johnston went to Africa in 1901 for the London Zoological society and spent many months in the Kongo region. He was unable to get sight of the okapi, but he bought a portion of a skin and two skulls from natives. He later made another trip to Africa and saw one of the animals alive, though he was unable to kill or capture it. He made such an accurate description of it, however, that he gave his name to the animal. Two years ago the New York Museum of Natural History sent an expedition to the Kongo, and a cablegram has just been received saying that specimens of the male, the female and the calf okapi have been killed and the skins and skeletons shipped to New York. Trees and shrubs have also been shipped, and the animals will be mounted in a lifelike manner and will be shown as they appear in their native jungle.

Old Lady's Sage Advice.

Knoxville, Tenn.—Mrs. Mamie Towse, of 102 W. Main Street, this city, says: "If you had seen me, before I began to take Cardui, you would not think I was the same person. Six doctors failed to do me good, and my friends thought I would die. I could hardly get out of bed or walk a step. At last an old lady advised me to take Cardui, and now I can go most anywhere." All ailing women need Cardui, as a gentle refreshing tonic, especially adapted to their peculiar ailments. It is a reliable, vegetable remedy, successfully used for over 50 years. You ought to try it.

Apple King Dead.

Frederick Wellhouse, of Kansas, did much to make the fame of the American apple and American pomology known wherever horticulture is taught as a science. When titles were bestowed with prodigality some ten years ago, he was called the Apple King of the World, but he never took kindly to the coronation. He was 82 when he died a few days ago.

Mr. Wellhouse owned and superintended the largest and most profitable apple orchard in the world. He planted this great orchard and cultivated it to its maturity. His holdings were 1,600 acres in Leavenworth, Osage and Miami counties. In Leavenworth county alone he had 640 acres in orchard. His first crop, gathered in the fall of 1880, was 1,500 bushels from 537 acres. Ten years afterward his orchards made their greatest yield, 79,710 bushels, aside from "culls," and it required two hundred cars to ship the crop to eastern markets.

Sutherland's Eagle Eye Salve Is the best eye remedy ever offered the public. It is a snow white ointment, painless, harmless and absolutely guaranteed to cure. At all dealers. 25c a tube.

Naval Bill.

The naval appropriation bill was reported to the House. It carries a total of $125,421,538, which is over two million less than the Navy Department's estimate. Sixteen new vessels of different types are provided for.

LONGEST SEA FLIGHT ATTEMPTED.

The McCurdy flight is regarded as one of the most notable ever undertaken by an aviator because the over-sea distance covered is about six times the distance of the flights from Dover to Calais, which attracted the attention of the world. The distance from Key West to Havana is about 112 miles, while the Dover-Calais route is about eighteen.

FOOD VALUE OF MILK

CONTAINS MATERIALS WHICH CHILDREN NEED FOR GROWTH.

One Quart of Cow's Milk Supplies
Practically as Much Protein and Energy as Three-Quarters of Pound of Beef.

It is a commonplace saying that milk, or, to be more specific, cow's milk, is a perfect food. This may be taken to mean that it contains, first, materials which children need for growth; second, material which young and old alike need for the repair of their bodily machinery; and, third, materials which both need for fuel, i. e., to provide with heat and with the energy necessary for work. It should not be understood, however, to mean that it has these ingredients in such proportions that it can serve satisfactorily as an exclusive food for a grown person or even for a child. Though it is the best substitute for mother's milk, it must be "modified" more or less before it can be used even for infant feeding with good results.

It is likewise a commonplace saying that milk is a cheap as well as a nutritious food. Just at present, with prices of all kinds of foods rapidly changing, it is not so easy as it once was to make the comparisons that are necessary to show which particular foods are really cheap, but while the prices of food materials vary, the composition of most of them remains unchanged, and it is always possible to compare their nutritive values. A quart of milk supplies practically as much of both protein and energy as three-quarters of a pound of beef of average composition or eight average eggs, and can generally be bought for less money. In case milk is eight cents a quart, beef 20 cents a pound, and eggs 24 cents a dozen, ten cents spent for milk will buy a little more protein and much more energy than ten cents spent for beef or ten cents spent for eggs. Thus, while other animal foods than milk (meat, eggs and cheese) are desirable to give variety to the diet it may be assumed that milk may be used as an economical substitute for any one of them.

Of the vegetable foods, many (flour, for example) are found to be much cheaper than milk, when both price and nutritive value are taken into consideration, and, as a matter of fact, they always form the greater part of the bulk of human food; but of the animal foods which are usually combined with the vegetable foods, milk is one of the cheapest.

In spite of the fact that milk is recognized as a nutritious and a cheap food, there seems to be a general tendency to think of it not as a possible substitute for other more expensive foods, but rather as an addition to the bill of fare. To illustrate, milk is frequently used as a beverage without the reduction of the amount of meat or other proteid foods served. From the point of view of the need of the body, this may be considered extravagant and the serving of a glass of milk or of a bowlful of soup or of such desserts as custards and baked milk, or the use of generous quantities of milk or white sauce on vegetables, offers an opportunity to cut down the allowance of meats and eggs.—Caroline L. Hunt.

METHOD OF CLARIFYING FAT

Objectionable Flavors Can Be Removed From Fat by Means of Potatoes.

Excepting where the purpose of clarifying fat is to remove flavors, a good method to follow is to pour boiling water over the fat, to boil thoroughly, and then to set it away to cool. The cold fat may be removed in a solid cake and any impurities clinging to it may be scraped off, as they will be found at the bottom of the layer. By repeating this process two or three times a cake of clean, white fat may be obtained.

A slight burned taste or similar objectionable flavor often can be removed from fat by means of potatoes. After melting the fat, put into it thick slices of raw potato; heat gradually. When the fat ceases to bubble and the potatoes are brown, strain through a cloth placed in a wire strainer.

Genesee Chocolates.

As the college girls are doing it: Boil for five minutes a cupful and a half of granulated sugar, half a cupful of milk, a teaspoonful of butter and two squares of chocolate. Then take from the fire, flavor with vanilla, stand the pan containing the syrup in four or five tablespoonfuls of confectioners' sugar, molding the mass with the hands into balls. When the balls are cold dip them one by one into melted chocolate and drain on wax paper. The mixture should be of a creamy consistency as will allow it to be molded.

Pineapple Cocktail.

One-half dozen oranges, one lemon, one pineapple, two bananas, two cups (about) powdered sugar, Maraschino cherries to garnish. Cut oranges in half and carefully remove pulp so that halves may be used for cocktail cups. Save juice and add to lemon juice. Cut pulp of oranges in small pieces, removing all membrane. Pare and pick pineapple in pieces with a fork. Cover with powdered sugar. Slice bananas. Pile fruit in layers in orange cases. Cover with juice and garnish with Maraschino cherries.

IN THE RAIN

It was Sunday noon. Spannerton had rushed over to the suburban railroad station just in time to be caught in the pouring rain that began suddenly. As he stamped the water from his shoes he saw the girl about whom he had been wondering for weeks.

She was clad in velvet as brown as her eyes and her big hat, also of velvet, was all adrift with plumes. The most ignorant of men would have realized at sight of her that as to attire this girl was most perishable. Everybody knows that wet feathers are a sight to make a graven image weep, while rained-on velvet has broken many a feminine heart. And the girl did not even have an umbrella.

Spannerton did not have to look at her to know that she was tall and graceful and had big eyes and a lot of fluffy hair and that there was a distracting dimple in each rosy cheek. He had frequently passed her on the street and he had wondered about her, but being a most exemplary young man, he would not for worlds have had it apparent to her that he was interested in her.

He had long wished that he knew her, but he took it out in wishing. She never got run down by an automobile in his presence, so he could not rescue her from anything. He could not ask her for a match to light his cigar, as if she were a man.

Now she stood there under the shelter, anxiously peering out upon the street. Plainly she was unhappy and nervous over the situation. Spannerton saw at once that he ought to offer her the use of his big umbrella. Here was his blessed chance!

But a terrible doubt assailed him. If he offered her the protection of his umbrella would she accept it? Evidently she was anxious to go somewhere, but was her anxiety sufficient to cause her to overlook such an unconventionality as he contemplated? Spannerton felt that she was of a sort to insist on drowning if a would-be rescuer had neglected to secure a proper introduction. He could imagine her raising her eyebrows and freezing him half to death if he so much as came near her. Yet she was in distress!

The rain came down in sheets. Spannerton in his indecision walked by the girl to the other end of the platform and then irresolutely walked back again. There was a little frown of despair on her face, which touched him. He half-halted and then she turned her back on him and he walked on.

At the end of the platform he reflected that possibly she had meant nothing personal in turning her back, so he walked toward her again. She drifted at once in the opposite direction with her face turned toward the street. She was ostentatious in showing that Spannerton simply did not exist so far as she was concerned.

Spannerton told himself that he was a fool. Even if he had never laid eyes on her before and even if she had been homely as a hedgehog ordinarily he would have recognized his duty and at once proffered his umbrella. Why, then, simply because he so much wanted to know her, should he hesitate?

The long and the short of it was that he didn't dare. And yet he felt most acutely just how badly she hated getting that velvet outfit ruined in the rain, which showed no signs of stopping. It was all utterly ridiculous!

As he paced miserably back and forth before her corner Spannerton had another unhappy thought. What if she were hating him for his selfishness in owning such a large and sheltering umbrella? Hastily he transferred it to the other hand, where it was not so plainly visible to her. Even though he did not know her name he could not bear to have her hate him!

His train was coming, but Spannerton paid no attention to it. He couldn't desert her.

Just then somebody ran up the steps obscured by extra raincoats and umbrellas in his arms. He whooped joyously when he saw the girl in brown velvet and then whooped again when he saw Spannerton. It was Bodley, whom Spannerton knew well. "Chump!" said Bodley in great disgust to Spannerton. "Have you stood here with that circus-tent umbrella all this time and let our dinner get cold while we waited for my cousin? Why weren't you a hero and a soldier? Why didn't you bring her over?"

"Why," stammered Spannerton in congealed horror at Bodley's denunciations. "I—"

"Yes," said the girl in brown velvet with a little flicker of a smile. "He's just been walking up and down, taunting me with that huge umbrella! I thought every minute he'd be kind enough to—"

"You thought!" repeated Spannerton, with indignant sternness. "Why, you never so much as glanced within a million miles of me and I didn't dare—"

"Well, you ought to have known anyhow!" said the girl in brown velvet with lovely inconsistency. "I don't believe you were worried a particle about my getting rained on!" Spannerton opened and shut his lips twice at this unjust blow. Then he spoke. "I'll be your shadow till I prove to you how much I've wanted to know you," he said.

Mrs. Powell Almost Dead.

Dry Ridge, Ky.—"I could hardly walk across the room," says Mrs. Lydia Powell, of Dry Ridge, "before I tried Cardui. I was so poorly. I was almost dead. Now, I can walk four miles and do my work with much more ease. I praise Cardui for my wonderful cure." Cardui is successful in benefiting sick women, because it is composed of ingredients, that act specifically on the womanly constitution, relieving headache, backache, irregularity, misery and distress. Only a good medicine could show such continual increase in popularity as Cardui has, for the past 50 years. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic.

SCHOOLMA'AM WAS PLUCKY

Miss Carrie Fish Made Round Trip Journey of 1,200 Miles in Arizona to Take Examination.

In Arizona it is the law that a prospective teacher, lacking normal school or college credentials, must stand examination at the county seat. This necessity for appearance for examination at Flagstaff, the political center of Coconino county, lately confronted Miss Carrie E. Fish, a young woman who came from Ohio two months ago to teach at Fredonia, the northernmost settlement of Arizona.

Mainly populated by Mormon stockmen and their families, it is situated on Kanab Wash, only three miles south of the Utah line. Flagstaff is to the southward 130 miles, but direct passage would be possible only to a bird, for between is the Grand Canon of the Colorado river, a mile deep and 14 miles broad.

The only road to Flagstaff is 235 miles long, by way of Lee's ferry across the Colorado and through a desert, dangerous and almost uninhabited country for almost all the way, the trail rarely used by any travelers save Navajo and Mopai Indians, through whose reservation it passes.

So the little schoolma'am bravely started northward for Flagstaff by stage to a point on the Salt Lake railroad in Utah, transferring to the Santa Fe system at Barstow, Cal. The round trip was one of 1,200 miles, consuming 12 days, the cost a serious tax upon her salary for the term. But she passed the examination.—Flagstaff Correspondence St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

STRANGE ROMANCE IN ITALY

Young Fisherman at Bari Is Discovered by His Now Wealthy Parents Who Abandoned Him at Birth.

There is material for a thrilling romance in the remarkable story which comes from Bari, in Italy, concerning a fisherman who, though twenty years of age, has just found his father and mother. Twenty years ago, a young wife from Strasburg gave birth to a boy in an hotel at Bari. The child was so weak that it was not expected to live. The mother herself was ill, and her husband had her conveyed to Germany. The parents did not want to be bothered with the ailing child, so they confided it to an orphanage. The couple proceeded to Strasburg, where they prospered in business, making a large fortune. It now occurred to them to inquire after the fate of their child whom they feared must have died. To their great surprise they learned through the German consul that their son was not dead, but was earning his living as a fisherman. His mother arrived in Bari, and found in the young fisherman a strong resemblance to her husband. The young man, who does not understand a word of German, was at once rigged out in new clothes, and proceeded with his mother to Germany.

SEEKING SAFETY

"Adelaide," said Brentwood to his wife with a suspicion of reproach in his voice, "I should think you'd be afraid to leave your jewelry lying around so carelessly." He was idling at his wife's dressing table and he picked up two diamond rings and a pearl brooch as he spoke. "Some of your handsomest ornaments are lying here in plain sight on this silver tray."

"That's where I always keep them, Tom," casually answered Mrs. Brentwood, who was intent on some Christmas embroidery.

"Well, I don't consider the top of a dressing table a safe place at all."

"I've never lost anything of value yet," said Mrs. Brentwood, soothingly.

"There always has to be a first time, you know. If you take my advice you will put your rings and pins away a little more carefully, to say the least. I'm afraid diamonds and pearls won't grow on our Christmas tree this year, so you'd better take care of those you have."

"Very well, Tom," agreed Mrs. Brentwood good naturedly.

The next morning just as she was going out she remembered her promise and hastily cast about for some place in which to hide her little collection of jewelry.

"I never did believe in locking up things," she said to herself, "for if thieves get in of course they break into locked drawers the very first thing."

A few minutes later she turned the key of her apartment door with the satisfied feeling that she had outwitted the shrewdest burglar.

She did not give her jewelry another thought until one evening a few days later when she and Brentwood were dressing to go out.

"I believe I'll wear my pearl brooch, Tom," she remarked.

"Yes, it will look all right with that gray dress," he answered. "You haven't been wearing your rings lately, have you?"

"No, it was too much trouble to get them out. After you cautioned me I put them all away, but I'll get them now."

Brentwood smiled as he adjusted his tie.

"Tom," she cried, returning in a moment with a tragic face, where are your tan shoes that were in the shoe bag in the hall closet?"

"The man with the shoe-blackening place under my office said he'd dye them black for me, so I took them down this morning. There was no use saving them for next summer."

"Do you know anything about that man?" Mrs. Brentwood strove to speak calmly, but her voice was tremulous. "Is he honest?"

"Why, what do you care about my tan shoes, Adelaide? Even if he should run away with them they wouldn't be much of a loss."

"But is he honest? Tell me that," demanded Mrs. Brentwood, excitedly.

"Hanged if I know. I don't know a thing about him. Why, Adelaide, what is the matter?"

"Tom, all my jewelry—rings, brooch, chain and locket—were in one of your tan shoes!"

"Good heavens! What were they there for?"

"For safe keeping. You know you said I oughtn't to keep my jewelry around in plain sight, so the very next morning after you said that I wrapped them up in tissue paper and put them in the toe of one of your tan shoes."

"Well, of all the weird, unheard-of places!"

"I never supposed you'd go near those shoes again this winter and I knew no burglar would look in such a place for jewels. I thought they would be perfectly safe and now you're gone and just calmly handed them away to a man you don't know anything about. Oh, Tom, what shall we do?"

"I'll run them down if I can," replied Brentwood between his teeth, as he fairly jumped out of his evening coat and into plain attire. "I'll phone you if I find any clew at the office building."

It seemed like midnight at least to Mrs. Brentwood before she heard from her husband, but it was really only 10:30 o'clock when the telephone rang with the comforting news that the jewelry was safe.

"It's just sheer good luck that your stuff didn't fall into dishonest hands," said Brentwood before he rang off. "This little vagary of yours has kept me chasing all over town tonight in a taxi. Don't you ever be so foolish again, Adelaide, as to hide away your valuables."

"Well, of all the unreasonable creatures!" exclaimed Mrs. Brentwood as she hung up the receiver with a sigh of mingled relief and exasperation. "My vagary indeed!"

HOPKINSVILLE GIRL

Wedded to Illinois Man at Belvidere.

The following is from the Belvidere, Ill., Daily Republican. The bride is a sister of P. J. Breslin, of this city, and resided here for several years.

"Miss Winifred Breslin, of Hopkinsville, Ky., and Harris Durkie, of Belvidere, were united in marriage at 6:30, January 23, at St. James Catholic church. Rev. Father Riley, of Beloit performed the marriage ceremony and Rev. Fr. Joseph Joyce of St. James church celebrated the nuptial mass. The bridal pair were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Will Hagen.

Following the wedding ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hagen, and later the bridal party went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Durkie on Locust street, where they and a few intimate friends partook of a bountiful wedding dinner prepared by the bride. At 3:30 January 23 Mr. and Mrs. Durkie departed for a short wedding trip, during which they will visit friends in the east.

The bride is from Hopkinsville, Ky., and she has been very successful in her work as a trained nurse, having been of late making her home at Rockford and in this vicinity. She will be wished much happiness, and many friends will be speak an abundant prosperity for herself and the groom, who is well known and a popular employee of the National Sewing Machine Company.

Wilson-Harrison.

Mrs. John Caro Harrison, of Fort Worth, Texas, announces the approaching marriage of her daughter Frances Duke to Mr. John Alexander Wilson, of Nashville, Tennessee, on the evening of Tuesday the fourteenth of February, at seven o'clock, at the Taylor street Presbyterian church Fort Worth. Mr. Wilson is quite well known in social circles in this city, having frequently visited Hopkinsville. Rodman Meacham, of this city, will be his best man.

YANKEE DOODLE

Stock Company to Play Engagement at Opera House.

The Yankee Doodle Stock Company which comes to Holland's Opera House for three nights commencing Monday, Feb. 6, is highly recommended by the press. They present two complete bills each evening and introduce five high class vaudeville acts, making complete dramatic and continuous vaudeville entertainment combined. Popular prices for this engagement, 10c, 20c and 30c. Reserved seats on sale at Anderson-Fowler Drug Co., Incorporated.

DEATH OF JOHN T. RICE.

Son of Mr. L. M. Rice and a Prominent Man.

Mr. John T. Rice, the son of Mr. L. M. Rice, the prominent tobacco warehouseman, died on Sunday morning at the home of his sister in Cadiz, Ky.

Mr. Rice had suffered with heart disease for some years, and his death was not unexpected. For many years he was in business in Evansville, Ind., and leaves many friends there as well as in Louisville, where he resided for a few years previous to his death.

Mr. Rice leaves, besides his father, two sisters, Mrs. J. L. Crenshaw, of Cadiz; Mrs. T. P. Smith, of Mayfield, and three brothers, H. T. Rice, L. L. Rice, of Lebanon, Tenn., and Cale Young Rice, of this city.

The funeral took place at Oak Hill Cemetery, in Evansville, on January 30.—Louisville Post.

Union and Southern Pacific Will Spend $75,000,000.

New York, Jan. 31.—The executive committees of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific lines voted to complete double tracking of the lines from the Missouri river to San Francisco. They also voted to double track the Oregon Short-line from the junction with the Union Pacific main line at Granger, Wyo., to Huntington, Ore.; also the line along Columbia river in Oregon to Portland, a total of 1,673 miles.

The cost of the double tracking of the lines as determined upon today will aggregate upward of $75,000,000, which will be distributed over a period of five years.

Thirty Years Together.

Thirty years of association—think of it. How the merit of a good thing stands out in that time—or the worthlessness of a bad one. So there's no guesswork in this evidence of Thos. Ariss, Concord, Mich., who writes: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery for 30 years, and it's the best cough and cold cure I ever used." Once it finds entrance in a home you can't pry it out. Many families have used it forty years. It's the most infallible throat and lung medicine on earth. Unequaled for lagrippe, asthma, hay-fever, croup, quinsy or sore lungs. Price 50c, $1.00. Attack Like Tigers.

In fighting to keep the blood pure the white corpuscles attack disease germs like tigers. But often germs multiply so fast the little fighters are overcome. Then see pimples, boils, eczema, salt-rheum and sores multiply and strength and appetite fail. This condition demands Electric Bitters to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to expel poisons from the blood. "They are the best blood purifier," writes C. T. Budahn, of Tracy, Calif. "I have ever found." They make rich, red blood, strong nerves and build up your health. Try them. 50c at all druggists.

Volcanic Tidal Wave.

BLONDES IN DEMAND.

Big Per Cent. of Philadelphia Brides Have Light Hair.

Philadelphia, Jan. 31.—Blondes in Philadelphia have just three times as many chances to marry as have brunettes, according to records kept at the local marriage license bureau.

During the last year the clerks in the bureau have kept a careful record of the complexion of the women to whom license were issued and Robert E. Furgeson, chief clerk of the bureau, announced today that out of 16,000 couples applying for licenses in at least 11,000 cases the women had light hair.

The clerks in the divorce courts here have decided to keep a similar record to ascertain whether blonde or brunette bliss is the more lasting.

CURRENT COMMENT

CREAM OF NEWS COMPILED AND COLLECTED FROM ALL SOURCES

The Republicans have taken their revenge on the Democratic South by refusing to honor the claim of New Orleans as the logical point to hold the Panama celebration in 1915. On the other hand the exposition so far as the House is concerned, is to be sent to San Francisco, the most remote large city in the United States from the Canal. The Senate may not be governed by the same narrow-minded ideas.

How Kentuckians Voted.

Washington, Feb. 1.—The Kentucky Congressmen divided as follows on the tariff commission bill: For the bill: Bennett, Cantrill, Langley.

Against the bill: Helm, Johnson, James and Thomas.

Stanley was present and paired. The absentees were Edwards, who was called to Kentucky on business; Sherley, who is ill, and Rhinock.

The speech made by Champ Clark, releasing Democratic members from any obligations to support the House Democratic organization, opened the way for Democrats opposed to the bill to vote against it.

Republican Beats Folk.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 31.—The two houses of the General Assembly met in joint session today and re-elected Frank Ditrell, Controller, and received 113 votes out of 136 cast.

Thomas Taylor, Republican, from West Tennessee, defeated Reau E. Polk, Independent-Democrat, incumbent, for State Treasurer and Insurance Commissioner. The vote resulted: Taylor, 69; Folk, 62.

Folk is a brother of ex-Gov. Folk, of Missouri. Taylor's election is one of the surprises of the session.

First Blood for Frisco.

The House of Representatives was enlivened by a determined fight for Government recognition by New Orleans and San Francisco, aspirant for an exposition in celebration of the opening of the Panama Canal, four years hence. San Francisco was successful. The Senate passed the Rivers and Harbors bill carrying an appropriation of $36,000,000.

President Invited.

Mayor W. O. Head and presidents of local commercial organizations issued an invitation to President Taft to visit Louisville on his tour of Southern cities, March 13. The invitations were extended through Senators Thomas H. Paynter and William O. Bradley.

BAD DEFEAT

For the Proposed New Charter in St. Louis.

St. Louis, Feb. 1.—The proposed charter for the city of St. Louis was defeated at a special election by a majority of 40,155. The total vote was 89,937, of which 24,891 were for the charter and 65,046 against.

About half of the total registered vote in the city was polled.

The proposed charter provided for a single legislative body, elected at large by all voters, civil service through the merit system and concentrating all executive and administrative power and responsibility in a few officers, answerable directly to the people.

It called for a referendum on franchises and would enable the citizens to recall any elective officer after eighteen months' trial. The charter would deprive the Mayor of the power to control 7,000 appointments.

Management of a Bank, to Command
Confidence, Needs Honesty and Broad Financial Knowledge.

Figures in a bank statement mean absolutely nothing unless the management of the institution is above reproach. The average business man, in consulting a bank statement, would not imagine that loans, bonds, securities and circulating notes could be so easily juggled with. That is, however, according to Chalmers Lowell Pancoast, in The World's Work, an easy matter if the officials of the bank are not honest. Chief among the essentials of a safe bank Mr. Pancoast mentions honesty and a wide experience in financial affairs. With either one of these qualities lacking, the stability of the institution is greatly impaired. Naturally, a business man wants to deal with a banker who has character, yet at the same time he does not have confidence in an honest banker unless the man also has wide experience in financial affairs. Honesty and a broad financial knowledge must go hand in hand; a banker must be a partner to a business man in every way possible.

RATS ARE COSTLY VERMIN

Reports Show They Destroy Food and Material Worth Over $75,000,000
Each Year in England.

The reports from various East Anglian (England) districts of proposed immediate official action for the destruction of rats show that the danger of an influx of the vermin to the country surrounding the scene of the original warfare in the Orwell peninsula has been fully realized.

From reports which the Incorporated Society for the Destruction of Vermin collected a little while ago it was shown that in all parts of the country the number of rats was increasing and their damage getting worse.

"By way of the throat of the rat," it was stated, "there is a wastage of more than $75,000,000 worth of good food and material per annum."

The conclusion reached was that nothing short of concerted national action would ever be able to solve the rat problem.

EXAMINATION IN FLOGGING.

Quoting from "Student Life in the Middle Ages," a paper recently read by C. D. Burns of Bradford, we learn that in the taking up of a degree in grammar at some of the universities the prospective schoolmaster had to provide himself with a birch and a boy, and as a part of his examination he had to administer a flogging to the boy in public, the boy being given a groat for his services. A large part of the education lay in debate between the boys, under the supervision of the master, the method bringing out the boy's reasoning powers instead of merely cramming them with facts, as is too often the method of today.—University Correspondent.

IN THE NIGHT

Shawberk was just dreaming that he was sinking into a sea of feathers when he heard his wife's voice. Her tones seemed distant and smothered and unreal, but the words were plain enough.

"Charles! Charles!" she said. "You'll have to get up and wheel the baby!"

The baby belonging to the Shawberk family had a cold and for three days and nights had been, to put it mildly, restless. Shawberk and his wife had been so long without sleep that the little respite they had just begun enjoying seemed heavenly. At the fatal summons Shawberk, like a craven, feigned that he had not comprehended.

"What did you say, Mame?" he asked, drowsily.

"The baby," repeated his wife. "He's awake—wheel him!"

The Shawberks kept the baby carriage in their large bedroom and it was commonly utilized as a crib by their son and heir, who was extremely young. Since his cold the baby had slept whenever he condescended to close his eyes, which was rarely.

There was no help for it, Shawberk pried his eyes open by main force, put out one foot into the night, shivered, shook himself and arose.

He stumbled against the carriage and a little feeling of irritation at his wife immediately surged through him. She had been very careful to put the carriage where it wouldn't escape him. Then she crept under the warm covers and left him to face the music! Wasn't he every bit as tired and sleepy as she was?

Then Shawberk had the grace to be a little ashamed of himself as he began his tramp back and forth across the floor. Long practise had made him perfect in the dark and he avoided the furniture skilfully. He was wide awake now and enduring his martyrdom like a man. His wife already was wrapped in heavy slumber.

Of course there was no reason why she should keep awake, but Shawberk somehow felt bitterly that he had been abandoned to a hard fate.

There was some satisfaction in seeing that his ministrations had had an immediate effect, for quiet was reigning inside the baby carriage.

Poor little dunder! The baby certainly had had a hard time of it. Shawberk pushed the carriage more vigorously as he recalled the baby's general unhappiness of the past week. If he was getting any comfort out of being pulled back and forth across the floor Shawberk was very glad of it.

His heart swelled a bit with the pleasant realization that he was able to do something for his child. There usually was so little a father could do and sometimes he had even been a little jealous of the baby's preference for his mother.

Shawberk suddenly realized that he was cold and miserable. He stopped wheeling the carriage long enough to search for his heavy bathrobe. Hearing a slight rustle, however, he hastened back to the carriage. Now that the baby was asleep he felt that it would be a shame to let all his work go to waste by permitting him to wake up.

Whenever Shawberk tentatively slowed down his ears would catch a suggestive stir and rustle. Then, before the protesting cry which he expected had a chance to ring out, he hastily began wheeling again. Still his wife slept quietly.

In spite of himself Shawberk felt cross and indignant. It seemed to him as he stumbled on that she at least ought to want to share his weary vigil. Some women, he thought, would even get out of bed and let their husbands rest.

Shawberk yawned till his jaw cracked and then in a moment of distraction he struck his toe against a chair.

"O-o-o-ooch!" he moaned, dancing about.

When the pain was somewhat allayed he realized that the baby carriage had stood still three or four minutes with no protests from the baby.

Shawberk wondered if he dared stop and get some sleep himself. The top of his head seemed caving in, his veins ran ice water and he ached all over.

"Mame!" he whispered hoarsely. "Can I stop now? Isn't he all right? I've been wheeling him for hours!"

"What?" asked his wife, startled. Then she awoke. "Why, Charles Shawberk! What on earth do you mean? What have you been doing all this time? The baby's sound asleep in bed here by me—you did not put him in his carriage at all!"

"Me put him in the carriage?" exclaimed Shawberk. "Why, I thought you had done that when you called me!"

"Well, I didn't," said his wife. "He must have gone to sleep again of his own accord. Where are you going?"

"Met" said Shawberk in tones of repressed emotion. "Oh, I'm just going out to kick myself around the block!"

Was Cured.

"What has happened to Mr. White, who used to be such a joker?"

"Well, he proposed to his present wife as a joke. She accepted him and he has given up making jokes ever since."

A Bad Bargain.

"Was anything sold at that auction?"

"Yes; I was."

TEST OF A REAL EDUCATION

Can You Say Yes to Every One of These Fourteen Questions Prepared by a Chicago Professor?

A professor in the University of Chicago told his pupils that he should consider them educated in the best sense of the word when they could say yes to every one of 14 questions that he should put to them. It may interest you to read the questions. Here they are: Has education given you sympathy with all good causes and made you espouse them? Has it made you public-spirited? Has it made you a brother to the weak? Have you learned how to make friends and keep them? Do you know what it is to be a friend yourself? Can you look an honest man or a pure woman straight in the eye? Do you see anything to love in a little child? Will a lonely dog follow you in the street? Can you be highminded and happy in the meaner drudgeries of life? Do you think washing dishes and hoeing corn just as compatible with high thinking as piano-playing or golf? Are you good for anything to yourself? Can you be happy alone? Can you look out on the world and see anything except dollars and cents? Can you look into a mud puddle by the wayside and see the clear sky? Can you see anything in the puddle but mud? Can you look into the sky at night and see beyond the stars? Can your soul claim relationship with the Creator?

ENCOURAGEMENT.

The Man—No, I don't suppose I shall ever marry. I'm too shy, don't you know, and "faint heart never won fair lady."

The Girl (insinuatingly)—But I'm dark, my dear.

SIMPLE POISON CURE.

A girl who is subject to bad poisoning has found most relief from a simple remedy within reach of all housekeepers, and anyone who can pay five cents for a bottle of milk.

Let the milk stand in a warm place until it gets very sour, then salt heavily and apply to the poisoned surface with soft linen cloths. Let it dry on.

If the itching begins again make a second application. Several may be necessary, but the home-made remedy has been known to cure poison that refused to yield to the usual drugs.

The girl in question finds this salted milk also good for ivy poison, to which she is likewise subject.

BLIND LEADING THE BLIND.

Jimmy and his pals were playing marbles as the new minister came along.

"Boys," said the newcomer, "can you show me the way to the post office?"

Jimmy pointed the way and then returned to his marbles.

"Little man," said the minister, "Don't you know it is wrong to play marbles; that it is a form of gambling. Come with me and I will show you the way to heaven."

"Ah, choose it, mister," said Jimmy, "you show me the way to heaven, why you don't even know the way to the post office."—National Monthly.

LEGALIZED EXTORTION.

Seago—Imagine how I felt to have to pay $80 duty on a $10 overcoat.

Lubber—I know just how it seemed, old man. Last week I had to pay railroad fare for my eight-year-old son.

HIS DILEMMA.

"If I was to give you $200 I couldn't get nothin' to chew on."—Life.

TRY THESE ON COOK

DISHES THAT WILL APPEAL TO JADED APPETITES.

Corn Oysters is New Dish That Makes an Agreeable Change—Chicken Souffle and Potato Croquettes in Latest Style.

Corn Oysters.—Half of a can of corn put through a chopper and mixed with two beaten eggs, two tablespoonfuls of milk, one tablespoonful of melted butter, a high seasoning of salt and pepper, one teaspoonful of baking powder, and sufficient flour to make a thick batter. This is dropped by small spoonfuls in a pan containing a little hot fat, and fried brown; from the flavor the little fritters are frequently called corn oysters.

Chicken Souffle.—One cup cold cooked chicken, three eggs, one tablespoon chopped parsley, three tablespoonfuls each butter and flour, one and one-half cups stock or milk, salt, pepper, and grated lemon rind. Make a foundation sauce by blending the butter and flour, then adding the stock or milk and stirring until the mixture boils. Cook two minutes, season and cool. Add yolks of eggs, meat, parsley, and lemon rind, and last of all the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in a steady oven forty minutes, and serve with a mushroom sauce.

Potato Croquettes.—Two cups of cold mashed potatoes, two eggs beaten to a froth, two tablespoonfuls of cream, one tablespoon of chopped parsley, one teaspoon of onion juice, two teaspoonfuls of melted butter, one teaspoon of salt, a grating of nutmeg and a dash of cayenne. Beat the eggs lightly and add them to the potatoes, then add all the other ingredients, mix and turn into a small saucepan, stir over the fire until the mixture leaves the sides of the pan; take from the fire and when the mixture is cool form into croquettes shaped like cylinders. Roll in beaten egg and then in bread crumbs, fry in hot fat until of a light golden brown color.

TO RETAIN FLAVOR IN MEAT

Escape of Extractives May Be Hindered by Sealing Surface of Meat Quickly.

The amount of the extractives which will be brought out into the water when meat is boiled depends upon the size of the pieces into which the meat is cut and on the length of time they are soaked in cold water before being heated. A good way to hinder the escape of the flavoring matter is to seal the surface of the meat quickly by heating it in fat, or the same end may be attained by plunging it into boiling water. Such facts are known to all cooks and have recently been studied systematically at the Illinois experiment station in relation to the amounts removed and the losses which may be involved in different methods of cookery. Such solubility is taken advantage of in making beef tea at home and in the manufacture of meat extract, the extracted material being finally concentrated by evaporating the water.

New Cook in the White House.

There is a new cook in the White House. She is Flora Hamilton, a young woman of Scotch-Irish descent, who went to Washington from the kitchen of a wealthy New York family. The New Yorkers gave her up unwillingly, but they were glad to see Miss Hamilton get such an excellent place. The new cook will have charge of all the cooking in the White House and will direct the serving of the big dinners there during the winter. Amelia Howard had the place, but she became ill and resigned. Martha Peterson, another recent White House cook resigned to be married to James Mulvey, one of the policemen in the executive offices.

Salmon Salad.

One pint of cooked salmon, one head of crisp lettuce, one small spoonful of lemon juice, one tablespoonful and a half of vinegar, two of capers, one teaspoonful of salt, a seasoning of pepper, one cupful of French dressing. Break up the salmon with two silver forks, add to it the salt, pepper, vinegar and lemon juice; put in the refrigerator for two or three hours. Break the lettuce leaves apart and throw them into a pan of cold water; rinse; lay them in a salad-bowl, the largest leaves first; put the next size upon them; then last the small white ones; on top heap the salmon, lightly cover with the capers.

Baking Powder Bread.

Each family has its own special favorite in breads, and this is one which has found favor in a neighborhood in the southwest. Four cups of flour, four teaspoonfuls baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, two tablespoonfuls sugar, a little over a pint of sweet milk or enough to make the mixture a little thicker than biscuit dough. Mix, then smooth the loaf and bake in a moderate oven until well done as any bread and brown on top.

Turkey Scramble.

One-half pound of the meat left after slicing; fry crisp; pour over this five well-beaten eggs to which has been added one-half cup milk (scant) and one pinch of salt; scramble this in a hot skillet until firm. Serve on browned crackers.

A "BROAD A" STENOGRAPHER

Manufacturer Advertises for One Who Can Take Dictation in an English or Boston Accent.

Last week a hardware manufacturer advertised for a stenographer "accustomed to take dictation from some one with an English or Boston accent."

"I want a girl familiar with that kind of lingo so there will be fewer mistakes in our correspondence than the last girl we had managed to inject," he said. "She knew how to typewrite, and I guess she was fairly proficient in pot books, but she never could get the hang of our gibberish. My partner does most of the dictating. To hear him talk is to run up against a regular fusillade of broad 'a's and rising inflections. The girl simply could not make out what he was driving at, and some of the letters he turned out were masterpieces of inaccuracy. The accent of a man who dictates is an important factor in correspondence, and both employer and employed would benefit by a broad 'a' stenographer sticking to a broad 'a' office."

TURNED HIM DOWN

Lord De Broke—It's a terrible thing, don't you know, Miss Billyuns, for a happy to have to go through life all alone.

Miss Billyuns—Why don't you employ a valet?

HAD NOTHING ON AUTHOR.

Robert Wickliffe Woolley, the writer, found it necessary not long ago to take a trip west. On the dining car of the train he saw that he had in his pocket ten cents in change, his smallest banknote being one for $50. He handed this to the porter, who went to the end of the car for a conference with the conductor. "I'm very sorry about this," said the conductor, standing in front of Woolley and toying with the big bill, "but we haven't the change for $50. We'll just take your address and send you the change." Woolley calmly reached over and took possession of the banknote. "You've got nothing on me," he said. "I'll take the address of the railroad and send the price of the meal."

THE OPEN FIRE.

"The open fire is a primitive, elemental thing," says John Burroughs in Country Life in America. "It cheers with more than mere heat; it is a bit of the red heart of nature laid bare; it is a dragon of the prince docile and friendly there in the corner. What pictures; what activity; how social; how it keeps up the talk. You are not permitted to forget it for a moment. How it responds when you nudge it! How it rejoices when you feed it! Why, an open fire in your room is a whole literature. It supplements your library as nothing else in the room does or can."

ALL FIXED.

"I think I'll propose at the party tonight."

"No, you won't."

"Why won't I?"

"My sister knows the young lady in question, and it has been arranged for you to propose at the ball next week."

MIGHT BE WORSE.

Mrs. Newpop—Everybody says the baby looks like you, dear.

Mr. Newpop—Well, I'm glad people don't say I look like the baby.

A TOAST.

Scribbles—Here's to my last book of poems.

Criticas—Here's hoping it is your last.

Do You Open Your Mouth

Like a young bird and gulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you? Or, do you want to know something of the composition and character of that which you take into your stomach whether as food or medicine?

Most intelligent and sensible people now-a-days insist on knowing what they employ whether as food or as medicine.

Dr. Pierce believes they have a perfect right to INSIST upon such knowledge. So he publishes, broadcast and on each bottle-wrapper, what his medicines are made of and verifies it under oath. This he feels he can well afford to do because the more the ingredients of which his medicines are made are studied and understood the more will their superior curative virtues be appreciated.

For the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and derangements, giving rise to frequent headache, backache, dragging-down pain or distress and kindred symptoms of weakness, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a most efficient remedy. It is equally effective in giving strength to nursing mothers and in preparing the system of the expectant mother for baby's coming, thus rendering childbirth safe and comparatively painless. The "Favorite Prescription" is a most potent, strengthening tonic to the general system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. It is also a soothing and invigorating nerve and cures nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, chorea or St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms attendant upon functional and organic diseases of the distinctly feminine organs.

A host of medical authorities of all the several schools of practice, recommend each of the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is made for the cure of the diseases for which it is claimed to be a cure. You may read what they say for yourself by sending a postal card request for a free booklet of extracts from the leading authorities, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post.

It's foolish and often dangerous to experiment with new or but slightly tested medicines—sometimes urged upon the afflicted as "just as good" or better than "Favorite Prescription." The dishonest dealer sometimes insists that he knows what the proffered substitute is made of, but you don't and it is decidedly for your interest that you should know what you are taking into your stomach and system expecting it to act as a curative. To him its only a difference of profit. Therefore, insist on having Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

BROWN'S TRUNK WAS PACKED

He Was Ready on Time This Day, but the House Keys Were Locked up Also.

"This time," said Mr. Brown, triumphantly, "I've got my trunk packed long before the arrival of any possible expressman." Everybody at the breakfast table congratulated him. The habits of Mr. Brown in relation to his trunk were well known to all his friends and acquaintances. They were such that Mrs. Brown had long ago given up any attempt to ameliorate them. She packed her own trunk and left Mr. Brown to deal with his according to his nature. As she sometimes said, "Mr. Brown's trunk always gets to the train, but I take care not to be round when he is packing it."

But this time Mr. Brown had taken time by the forelock. The trunk was packed and the expressman not due for 15 minutes. They all sat down to breakfast in great satisfaction.

Breakfast was half over when Mrs. Brown had a sudden anxious thought.

"Have you the keys to the house, Henry?" she asked, pleasantly.

Mr. Brown paled. He felt in all his pockets. Then he rose nervously from the table, still holding his napkin.

"My goodness!" he exclaimed. "I haven't! They're in the pocket of my other trousers in the bottom of my trunk."

And as the ring of the expressman resounded from the back door Mr. Brown disappeared with long leaps up the front stairway to unpack and repack his famous trunk.

GOSSIP AND SCANDAL.

Many people confuse gossip with scandal, but the two things are quite different. The scandal monger is usually detested, while the gossip is often universally popular. In fact the popularity which it brings in its train is one of the strongest incentives to gossip. A really accomplished gossip is a social acquisition.

Thousands of people who do not gossip themselves like to listen to it. It saves them the trouble of talking. The gossip is generally good natured. The scandal monger seldom is. After all, what is more interesting than human nature? That is the stock in trade of the gossip, as it is of the novelist and the dramatist.—Gentlewoman.

BANTAM HEN, QUAIL BROOD.

Lee Botts, son of Dr. A. T. Botts of Glasgow, has five almost full grown quail that were hatched and raised by a bantam hen. They imitate chickens in all of their habits except to go on a pole to roost.

The mother's repeated attempts to induce her flock to observe the custom of fowling have failed, and she goes with the quail to a corner of the henhouse, where she hovers them all night.—Glasgow correspondence St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

WIN SCHOLARSHIPS.

Miss M. A. Smeaton of the Toronto General hospital and Miss M. S. Rundle of St. Bartholomew's hospital, London, have just won the Isabel Hampton Robb scholarships at Teachers' college. Livingston scholarships were won by Miss Kane Umazawa of St. Margaret's school, Tokyo, and Miss Dorothy Eaton of Chihuahua, Mexico. The fellowships and scholarships in Teachers' college now number 62.

IN THE FAR WEST.

"What is the cause of such uproarious mirth?" demanded the new arrival in the western town.

"Lot of motorists have arrived on a tour," explained Amber Pete, "and the cowboys are laughing at their funny-looking bearskin coats."

"And what are the motorists laughing at?"

"Oh, they are laughing at the cowboys' b'arskin trousers."

NO WONDER.

Gyer—I know a man who actually lives on shavings.

Myer—Get out!

Gyer—Fact. He's a barber.

A MODERN EQUIVALENT.

"My grandmother says they used to have barn dances in her day."

"I see the idea. Now, why couldn't we get up a garage hop?"

KEEP IN TOUCH WITH HOME

Girls Who Live Elsewhere, If They Are Wise, Will Use the Mails Frequently.

Girls, who for any reason at all, are compelled to live away from home, should do anything to sweeten their lives and fill them with good cheer. One of the ways of accomplishing this is to keep in touch and sympathy with the folks at home.

Our greatest means of keeping interest in common with our home folks is correspondence. We should therefore use the mails freely. Write home often. Moreover, make your letters sunny and readable. If you have called on any relatives or friends of the family in the town or city where you are, tell the folks at home all about it. Tell them what you are doing, and how your work or studies are progressing. Inquire after all the folks at home. Remember to let love and good cheer form the keynote of your missive. You will find that the spirit of cheerfulness and kindness, in turn, will reflect on yourself, driving away and eradicating the sense of loneliness you perhaps experience at being separated from home and family.

BIG FOUNDLING OF THE DEEP

Whale's Lost Baby, Sixteen Feet Long, Is Found Swimming in San Francisco Bay.

Sixteen feet was the length of the baby whale that the pilot boat Lady Mine found swimming in San Francisco bay. The baby was not black, like old whales. It was pink, like a last summer's dress that has been many times washed. There were no old whales nearby, and it was apparent to Captain Pentland, as he looked down from the deck of the Lady Mine, that the little whale was a foundling. The sailors on the pilot boat say the captain's heart was touched by the loneliness of the infant and that he knew it was hungry. They say that the captain went below deck and got an oil can and filled it with milk and brought it on deck so that he could give the little whale some dinner. That was good of the captain, but the whale was no longer there when he came back. Maybe the mother whale had been swimming under water not far away and had called her baby. At any rate the captain was left standing sadly on the deck of the Lady Mine, and in his hand was swinging an oil can full of milk.

A FUTURE HETTY GREEN.

The aviator, Count Jacques de Lesseps, apropos of the American girl's head for business, said at a dinner in Baltimore:

"The American girl's financial powers develop early. I know a Detroit millionaire who gave his little daughter, on Christmas, a superb doll's house—a doll's house, lighted with electricity, that had baths and a garage and even, in one corner of its garage, a tiny doll monoplane."

"Well, my dear, do you like your new doll's house?" the little girl's father asked her one day during Christmas week.

"Oh, yes, papa; tremendously," she replied. "But I've let it furnished to Cousin Angelina for $10 a month."

KEEPER OF EARLY RELICS.

Mrs. Eliza Little has for many years been custodian of the government's room at the city hall in New York and has there been hostess to all the distinguished persons. In the room are all the relics of the early days of the country. Mrs. Little is a descendant of two signers of the Declaration of Independence, Joshua Bartlett and Abram Clarke. She is a Daughter of the Revolution and a Holland Dame. Mrs. Russell Sage spent $40,000 a few years ago remodeling and redecorating the rooms, the furniture being colonial, or as near like it as possible.

EXCLUSIVE.

Mrs. Abercrombie—Dear me, high, to be sure; I never could abide anything common or vulgar.—Life.

WHAT HE HAD PREACHED.

Blox—I saw by the paper that Jim Ghorner was buried yesterday. Knox—So did I; and I hope he's satisfied now, he was always preaching "Back to the land."

MORE LETTERS FROM SIAM

Miss Starling Tells More of Her Experiences in Mission Field.

Oct. 26, 1910.

Miss Buck went to the hill on Friday last, leaving me in possession of the field, so of course I had my hands full, until she returned Monday morning. On Sunday we heard of the death of the King of Siam, so the next morning we dismissed school for two days, following the example of the government school. We had a sick girl for about a week, and on Saturday morning, the doctor decided that she had appendicitis, and must be operated on at once. So she was removed to the hospital that afternoon, was operated on the next morning, and died on Monday afternoon. The doctor had waited too long, and she was literally rotten inside. The intestines were so soft, he did not dare search for the appendix. She was the only girl, and her mother, father and three brothers were all there, and were so distressed. But the mother, after the first outburst of grief, settled into a passive state, and at the funeral seemed no more concerned than any stranger. But these people are very heroic in death—in fact, seldom show deep emotion of any sort. Whether they are more heroic or less emotional than we, I do not know. These were very poor people, so Miss Buck and I paid the funeral expenses, which in this country, are very light. The girl's death struggles seemed to me dreadful, though Dr. Mason thought them very ordinary. But it took six of us to hold her. Her death disclosed some very painful circumstances, that I had better not mention, so on the whole I was very much shaken up, and concluded not to go to the burial, and was invited to stay over at the doctor's for a game of tennis, after the funeral. Just as I was starting home, they asked me to stay to supper, and have some games afterwards, so by bed time, I had been able, to a degree, to get my mind off the last two days' happenings.

Last night after supper, Miss Buck went in the dormitory, to administer some medicine, and found all the girls with their beds huddled together in a corner, as far as possible from the place where the sick girl had lain, with the old husband of the matron keeping them company. They were afraid, (Gifty girls, with two teachers) and begging Miss Buck to stay with them, so she sat, and talked with them awhile. If I am not much mistaken, those girls were a "flee" or "ghost," before they have forgotten about this girl's death, and I have been almost nervous enough to see one myself.

It seems not unlikely now that I may go to Chiang Rai next year. I came out with the Whites last fall, and now they want me up there. If I am to go anywhere else, I had rather be there than anywhere else, for I have some good friends there. This is next the largest field in the mission, and this is certainly our most needy station at present. Miss Buck is very anxious to go there, and has offered herself, but for some reason they don't want her. I should be quite content to stay here and let her go, but as long as Nan and Chiang Rai are both asking for me, it seems likely that I may be sent to one of these places. Of course I am ready to go anywhere but if I have a choice in the matter, it seems to me that Chiang Rai needs me worse, and the Whites are just about the loveliest people in the whole mission, as far as my having pleasant surroundings is concerned. But you can just make up your mind that I am going to get along alright, wherever I am, or I always have, thus far.

We are planning to hold memorial services in all our churches next Sunday, for the dead king. We feel that Siam's future is very uncertain just now. England and France will eventually probably divide the country between them. If France gets hold of it, it will mean that all missionaries will have to get out, I suppose.

School closes in three weeks, when Miss Buck and I are planning to go to the hill for a week's rest before Annual meeting. We will be on a continual strain for ten days or two weeks, so I want to feel fresh at the start.

It seems queer to be wishing you a merry Xmas in Oct., but if I wish my Xmas greetings to reach you in time, I will have to send them this mail. I hope you all may have a very happy season. It will not seem at all like Xmas out here, with the weather so warm and bright.

Nov. 10, 1910.

My Dearest Mother,—For the last few days, I have been trying to put about two days' work into one. School closes next week, and we are arranging the closing exercises and exhibit of our sewing class. My girls have been piecing a quilt, which I am to buy, and we won't get it done if we don't work extra time. I have all the basting to do, in addition to my regular class, so I have hardly been taking time to sleep. But we are to have the exercises next Tuesday, and then I hope for a good busy time, for a week. Miss Buck and I are planning to lie to the mountains, to get rejuvenated for Annual meeting, and will spend about a week there.

We have had so much sickness lately, that I shall be relieved when the girls are all safe at home with their parents. There has been a good deal of fever, and two of the girls are in the hospital now. Mrs. Campbell says that Dr. C. has given five times as much medicine this year, as he has in any of the twelve years they have been on the field. Miss Buck had to give up a drill she was practicing, so many of the girls were sick. My drill is about ready, and I am holding my breath for fear some of my girls may get sick. It will be very pretty, and I want to get some snap-shots of the different poses.

The Harrises got in last week, from their furlough. Mrs. H. is one of the most charming women I have met in many days. She is a daughter of Mrs. McGilvary. They brought back their little six and a half-year-old daughter, with one limb in a brace. She had infantile paralysis, while in the States. She is a dear little girl. It is nice to have a child in the station. The Mason boys are so bad they don't count, among the pleasure of life, anyhow. Their parents are raising them on the theory that they must be reasoned with; and I don't think the reasoning powers of boys two and three years old are very highly-developed, especially when one or both is yelling so loud they couldn't hear the reasoning, if they wanted to.

The High Commissioner of this province has written, asking service be sent them, that he may send the new king an account of the exercises. When prince, he visited this city, and named the boys' school, "Prince Royal College," and has always been very friendly to the missionaries, so we are hoping that his accession may mean great things for the cause of Christ in this land.

Little Aileen Carr has a birthday party this afternoon, and we are invited over. I suppose I shall have to go, as I did not go the last time she had a party. Mrs. Carr is very hospitable, and there are so few children here, I feel that we ought to do all we can for them. The Carrs are English, and lovely people. Aileen, their only child, is six years old, and beautiful, but so timid, I feel sorry for her. I suppose it is because she has never had other children to play with her.

Mrs. White has written down from Chiang Rai, inviting Miss Buck and myself up to spend Xmas. It is a small station, and they get very lonely up there. I hardly think we will go just then, however. Annual meeting will make enough good times for a while. I should enjoy the trip, though, and want to make it some day. It is in the mountains, and the scenery is very beautiful.

I just must stop, and get at my other work. Will write a longer letter, next time.

UNPAID LICENSES

Have Now Been Increased
Ten Per Cent.

City licenses that were not renewed by Feb. 1 will be increased ten per cent. from that date. This does not apply where new licenses are taken out, but only affects renewals. Many licenses have heretofore been collected with difficulty and the new law made this important change. The inspector will be instructed to enforce the collections without delay or those who have not paid will have to stop business and may have fines assessed. The city proposes to do a cash business this year in all departments.

Who Was There That You Knew?

IN the shadowy ranks of those who marched to defeat or death or victory fifty years ago in the mighty conflict that convulsed this great nation, is there father or grandfather or uncle of yours? Would you like to see a photograph of him in that long ago day of his youth—a photograph that he never knew was taken? Perhaps we can show you one; and in any case, we can tell you a story, stranger than any detective fiction, of 3,500 priceless photographs that were lost and are found again.

3,500 Long Buried Photographs of the Civil War

THEY were taken by the greatest photographer in the United States of that day; they were bought by the United States Government for $30,000; they were buried in the War Department for 50 years—they are buried still. But a duplicate set was kept by the photographer—who died poor and broken down; that duplicate set was knocked from pillar to post for nearly 50 years, until it was discovered by a New England collector. J. Herbert Morgan tried to secure the collection—Ex-President Garfield and General Benjamin F. Butler said it was worth $150,000—yet with the help of the Review or Reviews, the entire collection has been gathered into 19 great volumes and is placed within your reach at less than the value of one of the photographs. It is the one accurate, impartial history of the Civil War ever made before. Taken under protection of the Secret Service, these photographs bring to light thousands of little-known phases of the war; they penetrate to strange places and record strange things.
